

Green Tears Buddha

Green tears flow for the birth of spring. There is no line between sadness and beauty; they are the same. The geisha's beauty lasts only through youth and cherry blossoms fall like rain. What is the proper order of death? A son before his mother, a mother before her son. An older brother crippled and dying in the sunshine. Where are the tears of winter?