

Spring Bruise Buddha

The first snow melts and springs early sun bruises the body with shadows of winter. The heart longs to say goodbye to cold wind but rarely welcomes spring's demise. Is this the fear of the barren? After the carbon destruction, will we welcome the bruising or will the cold wind bring life?